

Eponyms of persons connected to the Netherlands Malacological Society

GIJS C. KRONENBERG
gijs.kronenberg@ziggo.nl

ABSTRACT

A list of persons with strong ties (such as membership or a professional or familial relationship) to the Netherlands Malacological Society, is presented in this seventh edition of this work. Earlier versions were published by the late J.G.J. Kuiper at the occasion of the 50th anniversary of the Netherlands Malacological Society (NMV) and a second version was published by G.C. Kronenberg on the occasion of the the 75th anniversary of the NMV. Each taxon is listed in its original combination, subdivided into two tables, viz Mollusca and non-Mollusca. A list of references to the original publication in which the name appeared for the first time is also provided.

INTRODUCTION

On the occasion of the 50th anniversary of the Netherlands Malacological Society (NMV), J.G.J. Kuiper (1984) published a list of eponyms of people connected to the NMV. Subsequently, addenda were published by Kuiper (1986; 1988; 1989; 1991; 1992; 1993; 1995), but no further addenda were published by him after 1995. On the occasion of the Society's 75th anniversary, an update to the previous list and addenda by Kuiper was published by Kronenberg (2009), with the names of persons connected to the NMV from its founding year onwards. This list also had a number of printed addenda and errata (Kronenberg, 2010; 2011; 2014; 2017; 2021).

Since 2009 over a decade has passed, and after the manuscript for the fifth addendum had been submitted, it was concluded that the cohesion between the second list (as published in 2009) and this most recent addendum was not particularly clear. Therefore, it was decided to publish a list, derived from a manuscript under construction (to be published at the occasion of the centenary of the NMV) for easy access to everyone interested in the history of malacology, and not solely for subscribers to Spirula, the newsletter of the NMV. This digital format also provides a better opportunity to update this current list on a more regular basis (Kronenberg 2021; 2022; 2023; 2024).

CRITERIA

For a person to get onto this list of eponyms, there are three criteria:

1. That person should be a member of the NMV at some point in time, or a local group with a connection to the NMV, or be in a close (personal) relationship with such a person (viz marriage, spouse, children, grandchildren). These latter people receive an eponym as a "thank you" for all the years of loyal support and such. Or, a person must have (had) a professional relationship with a professional malacologist, that the author of that taxon wanted to express gratitude by naming a taxon. This latter criterion is, admittedly, debatable. So, for example, a botanist who brings along a bag of shells from a holiday does not fall within the criteria, but one who does so from a professional collecting trip or a regular basis does. A person who has never seen a shell, but who is co-author of a malacological paper, also does. So, there is a gray zone.

2. That person must have (or have had) Dutch citizenship.
3. The starting point for this list is the founding year of the NMV, so only taxa described after 1933 can be included. As a result of this, some eponyms, e. g. Enteroctopus juttingi Robson, 1929 (with an incorrect suffix in the epithet) and Mitra juttingae (incorrect original spelling: juttinga), both named after W.S.S. (Tera) van Benthem Jutting are not included. This is also valid for non-Mollusca named before 1934, so e.g. Crematogaster vandermeermohri Menozzi, 1930 (Arthropoda: Insecta: Formicidae) is not included.

HOW THE LIST IS BUILT

The list consists of two tables, one covering the Mollusca (Table 1) and the other the non-Mollusca (Table 2).

That fact that malacologists (or non-malacologists who are, or have also been, members of the NMV) are also honoured outside the field of malacology is something that does not happen every day, and this is also something that can easily escape people's attention. Nevertheless, an eponym is actual proof that a malacologist is also active in other fields of biology or that their main field of biology is not malacology, but they do have some connection.

The first column lists the person who is honoured with the taxon is given, in alphabetical and chronological order. The second column lists the name and author(s) of the taxon. This is the original combination (in species names), and the names of the subgenera have been omitted. Subsequent re-allocation to another genus has not been taken into consideration. If a given name has been synonymized, or if it turned out to be unavailable, it still appears in this list. From all taxa, the original publication has been consulted with one exception, indicated with an asterisk (*) denoting that the original publication has not been seen, and therefore that one is from a secondary source.

Table 2 has one additional column in which the higher taxonomic category is shown.

Earlier ([Kronenberg], 2001, Kronenberg, 2009), I already made an appeal to authors to be more creative when naming new taxa, that is, when naming them after people.

Let me give an example: J.G.J. Kuiper was honoured with the epithet “doliarius”. In the etymology it is stated;

“From L. doliarius (noun) = cooper (‘vatenmaker’ or ‘kuiper’ in Dutch). The species is named in honour of malacologist and Sphaeriidae specialist, Dr. J.G.J. (Hans) Kuiper(…)” cfr. also the genus name Dolium, a junior synonym of Tonna.

Another example is the epithet “mkuu” in Gulella mkuu. Honouring A.C. van Bruggen. In the etymology it is stated:

“Etymology. — From Swahili noun or adjective mkuu, meaning great, principal, elder, chief, etc. As a noun in apposition, with reference to the size of the shell, but also to Dr A.C. van Bruggen, a distinguished and esteemed contributor to African malacology.”

Fortunately, as one can see in the tables below, some of these more imaginative names have appeared already. Most species-group taxa, however, remain with the straightforward suffixes “-i”, “-ae”, “-orum” or very rarely “-arum”, quite clear and obvious – yet a bit boring.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

First and foremost I thank the late Dr. J.G.J. (Hans) Kuiper, who conceived the project and published the initial list plus several addenda. Others who have contributed in various ways throughout the years, in alphabetical order are: J.J. (John) van Aartsen (†); W. (Wim) Backhuys; R.A. (Ruud) Bank; A.G. (Alan) Beu (†); A.N. (Bram) van der Bijl, A.S.H. (Bram) Breure; A.C. (Dolf) van Bruggen (†), J.A. (Jan) Buijse; H. (Henk) Dekker; T.E. (Tom) Eichhorst; J.C.A. (Joop) Eikenboom; M.J. (Marien) Faber; C.H.J.M. (Charles) Franssen; L.J. (Leo) van Gemert; E. (Edi) Gittenberger, B. (Bavius) Gras; A. (Axel) Haussmann; D.F. (Dick) Hoeksema; H.J. (Henk) & J. (Jos) Hoenselaar (†); L. (Leon) Hoffman; J.W.M. (John) Jagt; A.W. (Arie) Janssen (†); H.H. (Hugo) Kool; B.M. (Bernie) Landau; M.M.S. (Marc) Lavaleye; S. (Sylvia) van Leeuwen; W.J.M. (Wim) Maassen (†); C.J.P.J. (Kees) Margry; T. (Tom) Meijer; H.K.
